Crescendo con Te

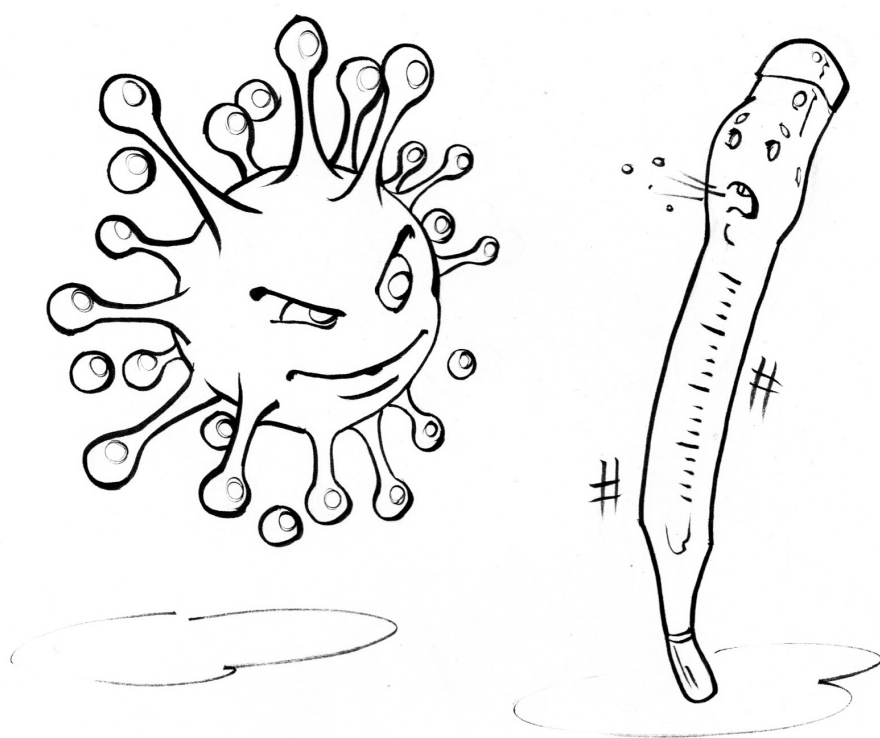

Mirco used to waked up early in the morning to go to play at the nursery school!

Along with the teacher and all his friends he used to have so much fun playing and making artwork.

Unfortunately one day a naughty virus arrived. It gave people a very high fever and a looooooot of cough.

The virus decided that all nurseries, schools and parks had to be closed, otherwise it would have made everyone ill!

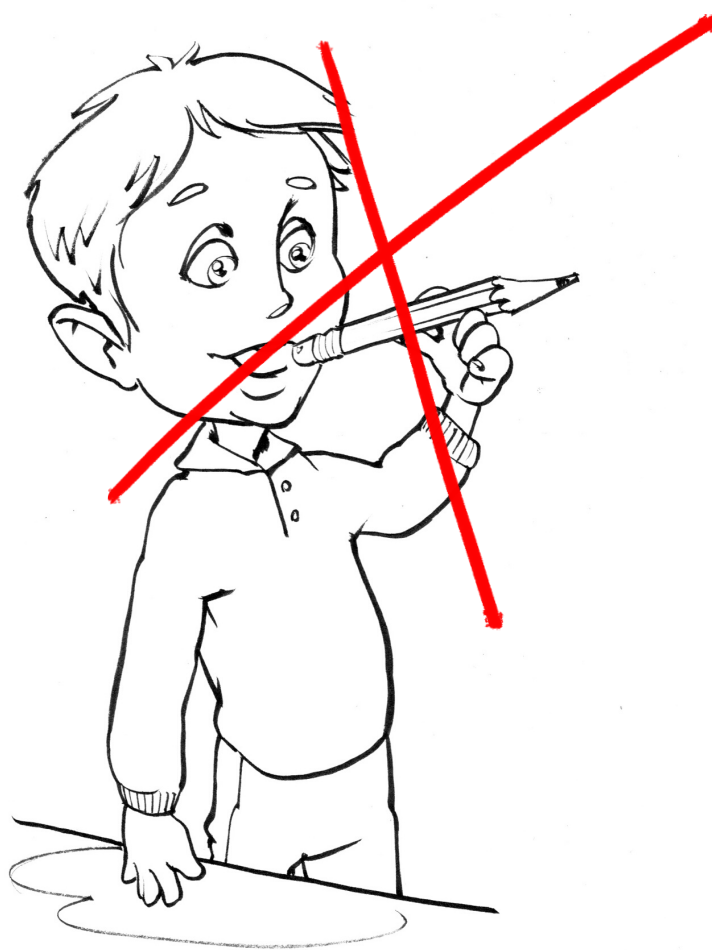

Mum and dad explained to Mirco that, in order to defeat this naughty virus, some very important rules had to be followed, like...

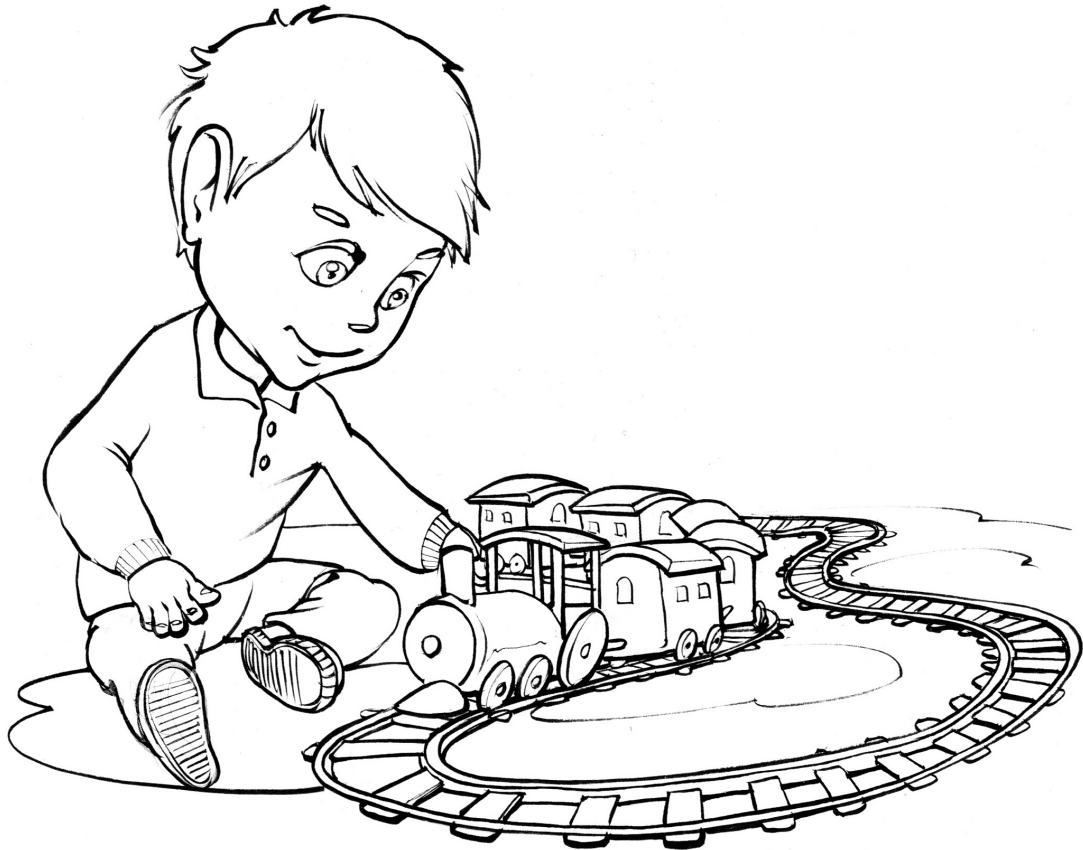

...washing your hands with water and soap, thoroughly and often...

...not putting your hands or other objects in your mouth and.....

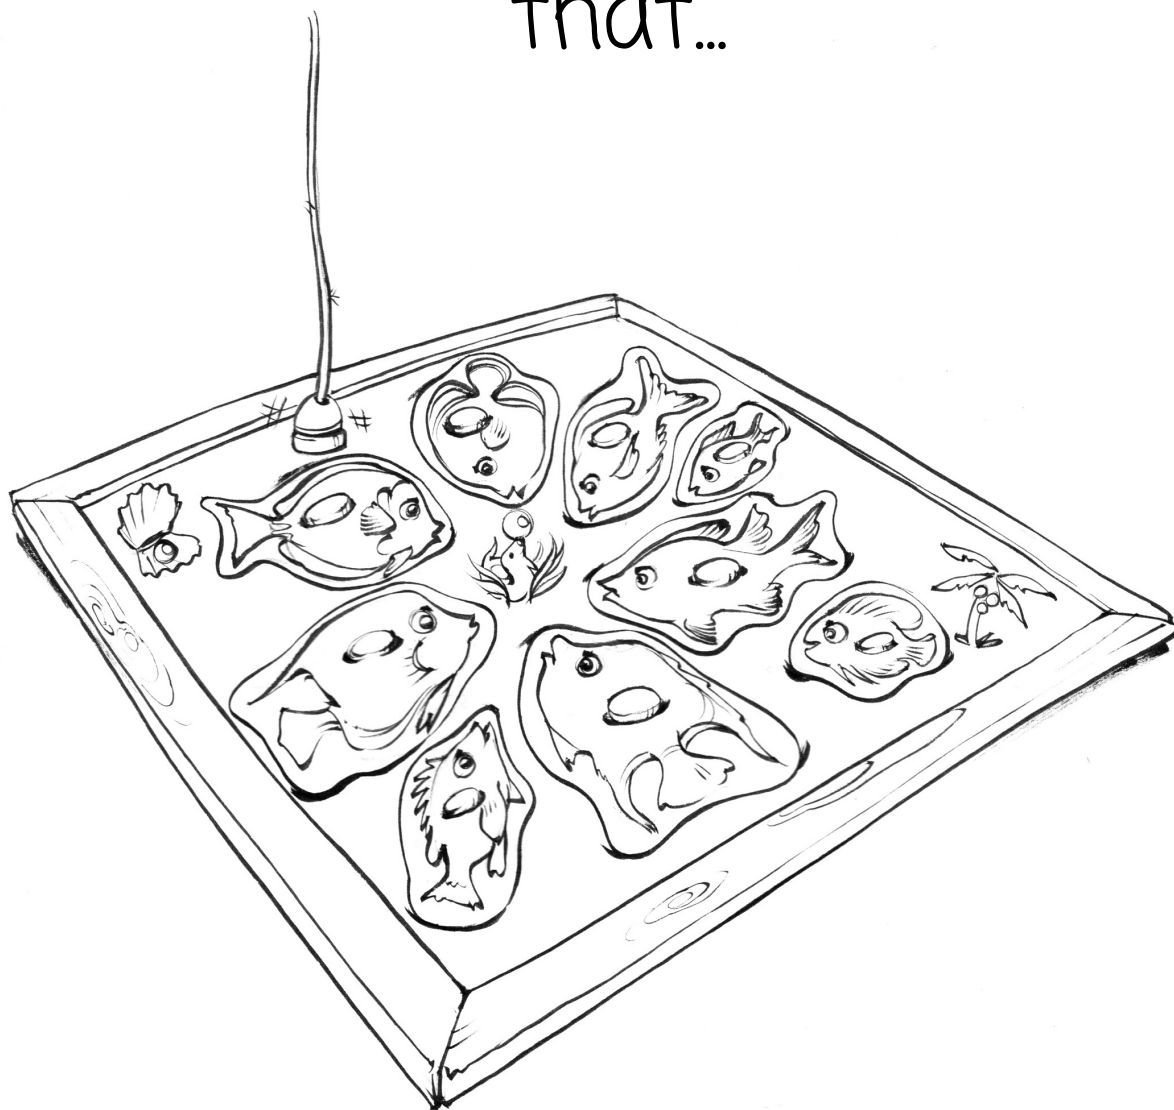

...be at home for a while playing loads of fun games !!

Mum and dad explained to Mirco that, if everyone followed those rules, the naughty virus would get bored and it would slowly lose its power to give fevers and coughs.

So Mirco, like all the other kids, followed all the rules and found out that...

...he had so many toys he had forgotten about!
Like the "magnet fish" game!

Mirco also found out that with very few items, you can build many things:

A toilet paper tube can become a tunnel for toy cars or even a music instrument if filled with dry beans.

All the children, the parents, the grandparents, aunties and uncles and the teachers followed these very important rules and, in a few days, the naughty virus lost its power until...

...it vanished!

Finally, nurseries, schools and parks could be reopened to let all the children play!

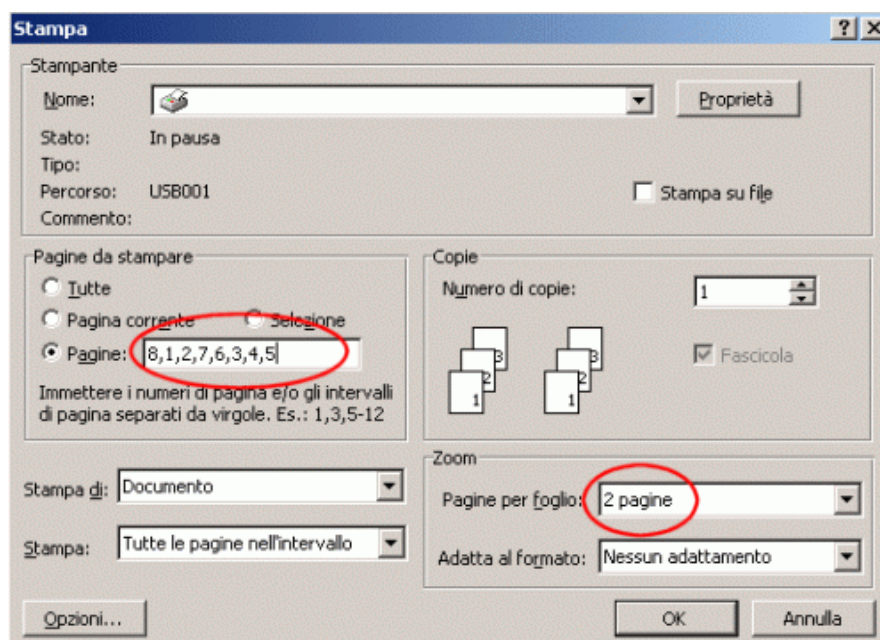

Mirco, with his mum and dad, organised a big party with tasty snacks to enjoy with friends and family and they could all hug again and be together!
